WILLIAMS AT BELOIT.

As we anticipated on Saturday the reception of Congressman Williams at Beloit was a hearty one. But that does not tell the whole story. In the first place Beloit is thoroughly aroused. The Republicans and a great many of the Democrats are "in down right earnest" in supporting the cause of an honest dollar. They are wide awake, hopeful, and will poll one of the heaviest Republican majorities ever known in that city, and we will add that the rest of Rock county will not be behind. The demonstration in behalf of Mr. Williams was a magnificent and a significant one. He was met at the depot in the afternoon by a large delegation of citizens and a band of music. His coming was the chief topic of conversation in political circles, and hundreds more than could be possibly accommodated at the Opera house, desired to hear him. For some time before the Mr. Williams began his speech, the capacity of the house was strained to its utmost. Every nook and corner was utilized, and even the stage was filled. It was the largest political gathering which Beloit had seen for many years, and in enthusiasm it was never exceeded. The speech Mr. Williams delivered was one of his finest efforts. It was a powerful, logical, earnest, and eloquent defence of the greenback dollar as created by the Republican party—a dollar which the faith and the credit of the nation has made as good as gold. In this line of argument he uttered the sentiment of the vast concourse before him, who attested their approbation by frequent applause which were loud and long-continued. It may be truly said that a meeting more "rousing" in its character was never seen in Southern Wisconsin. The speech was one which every Republican and every honest money Democrat could heartily endorse. Its delivery excited a lively demonstration which was exceedingly flattering to Mr. Williams. A circumstance happened at the close of the meeting which must be related. Our readers know Clint Babbitt, of Beloit. He is a Democrat and an honest money man. He was upon the stage during the speech, and like hundreds of others who heard it, was warmed up by the force and vigor of its delivery. When Mr. Williams had finished, Babbitt rose amid the cheers of the multitude and said "he was a Democrat and had always hated Republicans, but on the election day he would go to the polls a Democratic ticket in one hand and with a pencil in the other, and he would scratch the black-and-tan name off the ticket and vote for an honest man!" and as he uttered the last words, he turned and shook hands with Mr. Williams. The effect was electrical. The applause was long and deafening. Babbitt will keep his word, and many others will follow his wise example.

NATIONAL BANKS AND TAXES.

The prejudice against the present banking system—a system more perfect, more safe, more economical than any which this country ever before had—arises through ignorance or stupidity. There are those political demagogues who profess to believe that the banks are a great expense to the country, whereas they are virtually no expense. When Doillittle and the Green-

BRIEFLETS.

—Yesterday was the fortieth Sunday of 1878.

—No services at the Methodist churches yesterday.

—The Janesville Guards meet to-night for drill.

—How's Howe? He will be here Friday night to speak for himself.

—The song of "tramp, tramp, tramp, etc." is no longer heard, and the rust is fast upon the balls and chains.

—Fred H. Fellows, the jeweler, has purchased the handsome residence of B. F. Green in the First ward and will proceed at once to occupy it.

—A good many have business to see in Chicago this week. Rarus, Hopeful and Great Eastern show up on the track next Thursday. A mere coincidence.

—The Methodists are on the anxious bench as to who are to be their pastors next year. To-morrow their appointments will be officially declared and until then all is in the dark.

—The sermon delivered by Rev. T. P. Sawin last evening on "Brambles in Politics" was so well received that there is talk of requesting him to repeat the same at an early date.

—Charlie Stevens, one of Heimstreet's drug corps, started off to-day for a vacation of two or three weeks, the first he has taken during the past six years. He will spend most of the time in Chicago and other points in Illinois.

—The boys still seem to trouble the police officers and others by their disorders. Complaint is made that a gang of wild ones have been doing all kinds of mean tricks around Hogboom & Atwood's coal yard, knocking off locks, cutting the fence and scribbling over boards.

—At a regular meeting of the Janesville Guards last Thursday night, W. A. Hand, formerly of the Beloit City Guards was elected second sergeant. Will is a good one, and the Janesville Guards have got a good addition to their ranks.—Photograph.

—The Rockford Register announces that Gutten, "the eloquent Chicago lawyer," is to lecture there this evening, and warns the people that unless they purchase tickets at once they will be unable to secure seats, as the hall has a capacity of only three hundred. Judging from his effort in this city there will be about 200 seats to spare, and the next morning there will be another chair empty. Gutten is quite apt to get it, git.

THE WEATHER.

The thermometer at 7 o'clock this morning stood at 52 degrees above zero, and at 2 o'clock this afternoon at 63 degrees above.

Clear.

The indications to-day are for the Tennessee and Ohio valley, lake region and the lower Missouri valleys, southeast to southwest winds, falling barometer, warmer, partly cloudy weather, and numerous rains, followed in the northwest by rising barometer and cooler northerly winds.

MORE NEWS OF THE STORM.

In the big blow and hail last week there was considerable damage done on the farm of Stephen Swann, four and a half miles southeast of Whitewater. The roof was blown off the barn, and his granary containing several hundred bushels was tipped over. The windows of his house were broken, and many of his chickens killed by the big hail stones.

SPORTING NOTES.

The Chicago club will this week play four games in St. Louis with the Indianapolis club.

The Milwaukee club has engaged for next year Holbert, Weaver, Bennett, and Creamer, of this year's team; Remsen, of the Chicago, and Moynihan, of the Dribblers.

Among the western clubs this year, the Cincinnati have won 22 games and the Chicago and Indianapolis 20 each.

The horses in the Chicago meeting, which opens to-morrow, are now stable on the course. Yesterday Edwin Forrest took a whirl around the track for exercise, in 2:30 1/4. There is every prospect for a big crowd.

O'Leary closed his walk Saturday night, he having made 403 miles in the six days. Hughes made 311, and was completely used up.

The Chicago defeated the Milwaukee Saturday 17 to 4.

HARDWARE CASES.

Lawrence & Atwood's Store Burglarized Last Night.

Last night the hardware store of Lawrence & Atwood was broken into by burglars, who effected an entrance by cutting out two panes of glass and the sash in a south window facing on the coal yard. Under the window was piled some cordwood upon which they climbed, and were thus enabled to crawl into the store without any great trouble. They helped themselves to revolvers and pocket knives, but did not clean out all of that stock even, and did not molest other goods. The loss as nearly as can be estimated will not fall short of $200. There seems to be no reason for their not carrying off more goods, unless they were perchance frightened from some cause, and concluded to rest content with getting away with what they had. One of the clerks was in the store yesterday and then everything seemed to be as usual, so that the burglary must have been committed last evening. No clue has yet been obtained as to the whereabouts of the stolen goods, or of the thieves.

Abe Parker, the night watchman, says that about 11 o'clock last night as he paced the store he heard a noise inside as though a cat or a dog ran across the floor. It was soon followed by another similar sound and then all was quiet. He watched the store awhile but neither saw or heard anything more. He is now confident that it was the burglars walking in their stocking feet.

STREET ROUGHS.

Last night a gang of young roughs were rollicking along West Milwaukee street, when they were halted by Officer

Osgood, who interviewed them a little as to what plans they had on foot. They answered very emphatically but in a decidedly irreverent manner, that it was none of his business, and one of the gang who stood behind him fired a revolver at him. Osgood at once pulled his revolver and the band scattered, and left him in peaceful possession of the field. Several of the disorderly ones were recognized by him, and steps will be taken doubtless to bring them to justice.

SUNDAY SUNDRIES.

Bishop Foster Sets the Methodists to Shouting.

Rev. T. P. Sawin Speaks Sharply on "Brambles in Politics."

The Annual Fruit Festival at All Souls Church.

Bishop Foster's Sermon.

Yesterday was a field day for the Methodists of the Wisconsin Conference, which is now holding its annual session in Fort Atkinson. Bishop Foster was announced to preach in the morning, and hundreds crowded thither to see and hear this eloquent divine. A number went from this city in carriages, starting at an early hour in order to secure seats. By nine o'clock the church was crowded until every foot of standing room even was occupied. The annual love feast was in progress and in spite of the interruptions caused by the eager auditors crowding in for seats, the meeting was a highly interesting one, and was participated in with true Methodist vigor, of the olden sort, by a large number of those who had been at work in the vineyard for years. At half past ten o'clock the love feast came to a close, and most of the ministers retired from the church to give room for others to hear the Bishop. They with others who could not get into the church attended other places of worship. Before the sermon the Bishop ordained as Deacons eight young men, the service being very impressive. After the usual preliminary services, the Bishop announced as his text the sixteenth verse of the third chapter of Timothy: "And without controversy great is the mystery of godliness; God was manifest in the flesh, justified in the Spirit, seen of angels, preached unto the Gentiles, believed on in the world, received up into glory." He spoke first of the mystery of godliness, then how God became manifest in the flesh, then how he was justified in the Spirit, and in closing dwelt upon the last clause "received up into glory."

The Bishop spoke for an hour and a half, but none of the usual grumblings about long sermons were heard. The first part of the sermon consisted of clear-cut argument phrased so as to be easily understood, and the thoughts, clad in elegant diction, were piled up until a summit was reached from which were seen visions of the far beyond, that were inspiring. As he described Christ's baptism, his death, resurrection, and ascension, the audience cried and shouted, and the thrill of his earnest words seemed to go through and through those who sat in the pews drinking in the inspiration.

Bishop Foster is a grand looking old man, of fine physique, and from the very moment he appears in the desk, impresses one with his purity of life, earnestness of thought, and mastery of the situation, and this impression is only strengthened as he proceeds with his sermon. Those who had the pleasure of hearing him yesterday will never forget the occasion.

Brambles in Politics.

Rev. T. P. Sawin preached an interesting and instructive sermon last evening from the text found in Judges IX:14-15 "Then said all the trees unto the bramble, Come thou and reign over us. And the bramble said unto the trees, If in truth ye appoint me king over you, then come and put your trust in my shadow, and if not let fire come out of the bramble, and devour the cedars of Lebanon."

The speaker narrated the historical incidents concerning the bloody war in which Abimelech gained the throne of Israel by hiring a band of insurgents, slaying all the royal household except the youngest, Jotham, and then caused himself to be proclaimed king. In the midst of the coronation festivities young Jotham stood on a high rock overlooking the valley, in which the capitol was located, and pronounced this first recorded fable of history. He said the trees went forth to choose a king; they first asked the olive, which refused. Then the fig, standing for culture and knowledge, was asked to be king, but it refused. Then the vine, standing for love and graciousness, but it also refused. At last they sought the bramble, the briar and the thistle, strong only in its vitality of violence, as stated in the text. The result shows the force of the fable, Abimelech perished by a woman's hand. The capitol and the sanctuary were consumed by fire. The same story is now new and the sermon preached by Jotham from his stony pulpit will bear repetition now. The time has come when no place is too sacred for the handling of themes which pertain to the secular affairs of the world. Religion and politics cannot be separated, for good government means righteous government, and righteous government means such as God wills, and the pulpit was justified in urging the people to act in party and politics in such a manner as to commend them to the praise of the Lord of nations.

One of the lessons to be learned from the fable is that men naturally desire good rulers and seek for them. The men who are wise and honest in their personal affairs will be so in public affairs, as a rule. The people are too apt to forget their power and responsibility. When Congress passes an iniquitous measure, every man should look over the eyes and nose and remember the men who voted wrong, and not give them outrage again. The people were sovereigns and could prevent the brambles from gaining control. The cry of "principles not men," was as rotten a sentiment as the cry of "men not principles."

What is wanted is "men with principles." A man without sturdy, clear cut principles, is a bramble, and ought to be fired. He is a demagogue and the only thing that stands between him and theft or political adultery is a chance. Give him the chance and he will.

The second lesson taught by the fable is the unwillingness of really good men to accept any political profferment that depends on the suffrage of the people. The brambles are so thick that the best of men cannot avoid a certain amount of laceration, if they enter the strife. No man can run for office without being subject to all sorts of vile attacks. Every office-holder is liable to have dirt thrown at him.

In the face of this it is the duty of good men to be willing to bear all this obloquy in a spirit of self sacrifice for the good they may do. Otherwise the brambles will rule. The voice of the people is indeed the voice of God. In the great popular heart there is a firm motive of right. It speaks in solemn tones when justice is done. It says to the man who has grown rich by going through bankruptcy, "Sir, you walked into the house of fortune over the corpses of your honor. A dead virtue lies on your threshold and there are no sweet perfumes which wealth can purchase, and no costly burial casket, which money can buy, that will remove the taint of corruption, or hide the infamy of that murder." It says the same to every corrupt official. It matters not what sort of a bramble a man is, whether a political mountebank, clerical Pecksniff, custom house thief, reconstruction adventurer, municipal ring borer, election repeater, or a telegram cipherer, the public judgment will come at last, and his sin will soon find him out. In private life a man may escape the judgment, but in public life it dawns with every sunrise. Good men should step into the political arena and sacrifice something for the public good, for it is certain that false aspersions will return to plague their inventors. There is no other hope.

The third lesson is that the bramble is always willing to hold office, and does not care what means are used to get it, but in the end is sure to bring ruin to everyone who trusts it. The bramble in politics is the man who knows no interest but what center in himself. Selfishness is the cause of the failures in the great questions which have attracted attention for the past few years—the question of reconstruction, civil service reform, the Indian question, and the financial question. If the brambles had been out of Congress, there would now be a general prosperity, renewed confidence, and a financial platform which would have opened every avenue of industry, and forever destroyed any hope of making things easy by an inflation of irredeemable paper. The trouble has been that men go to Congress to represent themselves instead of the people. A man who adopts the maxim "to the victor belong the spoils" is a bramble. Once the bramble spirit ruled in France. It was named Robespierre and Marat. Once it ruled in Spain and was named Phillip and the Duke of Alva. Once it ruled in Rome and was named Caesar. Once it ruled in Turkey, and was named after the Sultan. It seeks now to rule in England. Its name is Beaconsfield. To-day too, it is up for office in this country. Its priest is Dennis Kearney and its prophet is the hero of the moor in Mechanics' hall, at Worcester. There are questions upon which good men may fairly and honestly differ, but corruption and fraud can have but one judgment pronounced against them. The fire will come out of the brambles, and destroy any nation that sustains by implication even any immoral practice, whether it be the consummation of a Berlin treaty, or the ignoring of defunct national promises to pay just debts. The only sure prosperity is founded on immutable principles of right.

Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproval to any people."

The Fruit Service.

The annual "fruit service" of All Souls church yesterday drew a large audience. The church was handsomely decorated with autumn leaves, fruits and grain, and the effect was unique and artistic, showing how much of beauty is all around us, unnoticed until placed in harmonious combination. The service consisted of music, readings in unison, from the "Way of Life," recitations by the children, and concluding remarks from the pastor, Mr. Jones spoke of the beauty and force of the great moral in Goethe's "Wilhelm Meister," and of the revelations of God that come to us from lower nature. From them we get a hint of what the philosopher and poet meant when he said, "the last stage of religious culture is in that contained beneath you."

He spoke in retrospect rather than prospect; seven years ago he first preached to the people of All Souls, and the record since was to him a promising one. The membership had increased; the church debt had been paid, and the amounts pledged would pay all correct expenses. He gave the children a little talk concerning a "refined and polite pumpkin," putting into pithy phrase, some valuable lessons.

This occasion was one of the "children's days," and the small ones enjoyed their part extremely well; their recitations were appropriate and well delivered, and altogether the service was a very interesting one.

St. Patrick's Temperance Society.

The services at St. Patrick's church yesterday were of special interest owing largely to the fact that the St. Patrick's Total Abstinence and Benevolent Society attended in a body, and in full regalia, making a pleasing array of gaily uniformed cold-water men there being about 125 present. The rules of the Society require such an attendance upon the religious services twice each year, and yesterday was one of these occasions. It was also "Rosary Sunday," and Father Keenan, of Pio Nono Seminary, Milwaukee, gave a very interesting account of the history of the rosary in the sermon, which he delivered on this occasion. He also spoke in high terms of the faithfulness and zeal of the Society. Father

Doyle officiated in the first mass and Father Keenan at High mass.

In the evening the Society held a meeting in their rooms and received new additions to their ranks. Father Keenan and Father Doyle were present, and the former spoke again in high commendation of the work being done, and Father Doyle gave the members some choice tid-bits of good advice. The Society now numbers 175 members in good standing, and is steadily growing in numbers and in strength.

CITY NOTICES.

A Sour Stomach.

causes dyspepsia, and poor teeth produce sour stomach because the food is not properly masticated. Keep the teeth healthy, and the body at large will be in trim. Use Sodazod regularly, for it is pleasant and healthful. Once in the house it stays there.

Once smeared between pieces of wood, Spalding's Glue never lets go. It is a fixture.
